Network News is a monthly guide to inspiring events in North Wales. The magazine is produced entirely from contributions sent in by the local community, including articles, poems, events and information about local groups and their activities.

The production of the magazine relies a great deal on practical voluntary help, and enthusiastic volunteers are encouraged to get involved in a number of different ways. This involvement is seen as a way for volunteers to develop their confidence and they also receive training in a number of skills connected with producing a network magazine. Income is from the cover price of £1, through direct sales, subscription, and from advertising.

Because Network News is extremely pro-environmental, it always draws special attention to environmentally positive and sustainable events in Gwynedd and its monthly listing of green events is interesting, informative and comprehensive.

In the future the group plans to extend its work by producing a Welsh language edition or supplement.

Founding principles: A loose-knit group of people who share a vision and task of healing the world in various ways

Desired help: Wider distribution – a stronger network with more people contributing

Tips for others: Value voluntary contributions very highly. Respect volunteers.

Status of organisation: Voluntary

Area: North Wales
