Nant Gwrtheyrn seeks to promote the study of the Welsh language, Welsh literature and culture. Residential language courses are run throughout the year teaching learners from many countries around the world.

The Centre is part-funded by the National Assembly for Wales via ELWa (Education and Learning Wales), with respect to Welsh for Adults provision, and additional income is generated by Welsh medium cultural courses, educational courses, conference and wedding facilities and a variety of other organised activities. Members of the local and visiting community are encouraged to visit the new Heritage Centre and a programme has been developed to educate schools about Welsh culture.

Nant Gwrtheyrn has a strong interest in renewable energy technology and its recently adapted chapel which is now a Heritage Centre is a good example of an energy efficient building.
